What's Happening This Week

Our class filled the pom pom jar!! We will be celebrating on Wednesday with a Show-and-Tell day! Students may bring a show and tell of their choosing, I ask that it can fit inside their backpack so that it can be safely tucked away until Show-and-Tell time!

This week we will be reviewing for and then taking our FIRST math test! Please pray for our students that they don't feel nervous, as they are definitely going to do really well on the test! If you would like to help your child prepare at home, you may ask them questions such as, how many are there? Or which is larger? Or ask them to decipher between a rectangle and a square!

This week in Bible, we are continuing to talk about Abraham's family, specifically Isaac who married Rebekah and had twins, Jacob and Esau. We remember God's promises coming true throughout the line of Abraham!

We are really focusing on rhyming this week. We are trying to recognize words that rhyme and produce rhyming words.

Note from the Teacher: As the weather gets colder, please make sure that your child is sent to school with appropriate clothing for recess! It is about time to haul out warm hats and gloves/mittens so that students are not freezing outside!

reminders

Please send your child's sight words back to school each day! As they learn their current words, I will give them more words to work on. Our goal is to learn at least 60 sight words by the time they finish kindergarten, but the more they learn, the better!
