What's Happening This Week

Our kindergarten students have been working SO hard on their addition and subtraction! They are quickly adding and subtracting with the numbers 1 through 5. I would love it if you could see how amazing they are, so I am sending home an addition and subtraction practice sheet on Monday. Please have your child do this at home, let them impress you, and then send it back to school, completed by Friday.

Our 8th graders organized a fundraising challenge for our school. They are asking students to bring in spare change to be donated to kids and families in Haiti. In chapel, we were told about the kids in Haiti who do not have money to buy shoes or food, and our kindergarten students felt strongly. Feel free to have them work for the spare change that they bring in. Thank you for encouraging a heart of service and giving in our little ones! They will be collecting change until March 28.

Note from the Teacher: Hopefully this week we will finally have a full week of school! I think we are all ready to be back in a normal, uninterrupted routine!

Our Scholastic book order is due on Friday. Please turn in your order to me or submit it online by Friday, March 15. Don't forget to use our class code: TBBB2

If you signed up to be a mystery reader, please send me your three clues no later than the day before you will be coming. Thank you!
